IV. THE MANNER AND MEANS TO DEFRAUD

15. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER and others under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, established TCFG as a vehicle to receive investor funds.

16. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER sought introductions to potential investors through professional business intermediaries. These referrals from established professionals lent an air of legitimacy to R. STOVER and led investors to trust representations made by R. STOVER.

17. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER and others under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, presented R. STOVER to potential investors and associates as a successful business person, with experience in real estate development including shopping centers and grocery stores, business financing and timber.

18. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER, and others under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, solicited investments in XIH, XI and later CI via in-person meetings and other means of communication, including telephone, fax, and email.

19. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER, and others under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, presented investors with business plans and financial statements for XIH, XI and later CI via in-person meetings and interstate email. In these business plans and financial statements R. STOVER and J. STOVER represented that XIH, XI and later CI were companies with sound business models, strong growth opportunities and manageable debt exposure. In truth and fact, the financial statements misled investors regarding the true financial condition of the business entities.

20. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER, and others under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, repeatedly sought investments in the form of a discretionary line of credit up to seven (7) million dollars. R. STOVER refused to entertain requests from potential investors for equity or control in XIH, XI and later CI. When investors consistently rejected R. STOVER's request for a discretionary line of credit, R. STOVER, either directly or through other persons under his employ, supervision and control, solicited investments in the form of short term notes.

21. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER, either directly or through other persons and entities under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, or acting in concert with them, made materially false and fraudulent representations and promises concerning the solicited investments or loans. Among the materially false and fraudulent pretenses, representations, promises and material omissions, regarding the investments or loans were:

- a. Investor funds would be used exclusively for business purposes. R.

STOVER represented, orally and in writing, that investor funds would be used exclusively for capital sourcing and business related expenses for XIH, XI and later CI. In truth and fact, R. STOVER directed a portion of investor funds to personal use for himself and his family members, including J. STOVER. Defendant R. STOVER also directed a portion of investor funds to R. STOVER's business obligations unrelated to XIH, XI, or CI.

- b. R. STOVER invested his own funds into XIH, XI, and CI. R. STOVER represented, orally and in writing, that he personally provided capital sourcing for XIH, XI and later CI. This led investors to believe that they were jointly undertaking investment opportunities with R. STOVER. In truth and fact, R. STOVER did not make loans, fund transactions as promised, or supplement other investor infusions of cash.

- c. R. STOVER promised investors short term repayment of loan notes, including interest. R. STOVER, either directly or through other persons and entities under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, executed short term notes with investors for payment of loans with specific, short term maturity dates. In truth and fact, R. STOVER never honored the note maturity dates and did not make payments as promised. R. STOVER and J. STOVER failed to inform investors that R. STOVER was in default on millions in loan notes made or guaranteed by R. STOVER, including loans purportedly for the benefit of XI.

- d. R. STOVER securitized investor loans with heavy equipment and accounts receivable. At times, STOVER, either directly or through other persons and entities under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, secured investor notes through the execution of Security Agreements which pledged heavy equipment or accounts receivables as collateral for loan payment. In truth and fact, R. STOVER pledged encumbered, otherwise unavailable, or double securitized collateral in the Security Agreements.

e. R. STOVER personally guaranteed investor funds. At times, R. STOVER provided investors with a personal guarantee of payment in the event that note payment could not otherwise be met. In truth and fact, R. STOVER did not inform investors that he failed to honor personal guarantees he provided in conjunction with defaulted notes to prior investors and that R. STOVER did not have the financial capacity to personally guarantee payment.

f. R. STOVER promised investors that additional sources of funding for loan repayment and business operations were imminent. R. STOVER represented, orally and in writing, that he was close to securing outside sources of funding for XIH, XI and later CI and that those funds would be available for payment on investor loan notes. In truth and fact, any representations R. STOVER made about outside funding sources were speculative and misleading and R. STOVER never secured outside funding for XIH, XI and later CI.

22. As part of the material scheme to defraud, STOVER claimed his motivation for seeking investors for XIH, XI and later CI was to help “the guys”, including J. STOVER, who held ownership interests in XIH, XI and later CI. In truth and fact, R. STOVER’s primary motivation was securing a funding source to provide the sole source of income for himself and his family members including J. STOVER.

23. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER told investors in XIH, XI and later CI, that R. STOVER was not taking, and did not plan to take, any compensation or fees for the work he did on behalf of XIH, XI and later CI. In truth and fact, R. STOVER directed a portion of investor funds directly to R. STOVER's personal use and to other uses unrelated to XIH, XI and later CI. In addition, R. STOVER, and others under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, directed funds from XIH, XI and later CI to R. STOVER and to other uses unrelated to XIH, XI and later CI. During the relevant time period, investor funds and funds redirected from XIH, XI and later CI were R. STOVER's primary source of income.

24. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER, and others under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, represented to investors that the business entities needed additional infusions of capital in to order to successfully capture what R. STOVER characterized as “available business opportunities”. In truth and fact, R. STOVER sought funds from investors in part to divert those funds to his personal use and the use of his family members, including J. STOVER.

25. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER and others under his employ, supervision and control including J. STOVER, created the illusion of managerial distance between R. STOVER as a source of capital funding through TCFG and the operations of XIH, XI, and CI. In truth and fact, R. STOVER, assisted by J. STOVER and others, exercised total control over TCFG and all the aforementioned entities, including but not limited to the movement of money and the dissemination of information via business plans and financial statements.

26. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER blamed his failure to meet his obligations under investor notes on a variety of external factors including but not limited to: the XI bankruptcy trustee, his health, market conditions and the failure of investors to provide additional capital resources on demand.

27. As part of the material scheme to defraud, after R. STOVER failed to perform on the note terms as promised, R. STOVER sent investors lulling emails promising payment on investor notes in the near future. In truth and fact, R. STOVER failed to make payments consistent with these additional false promises and assurances of late repayment.

28. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER and others under his employ, supervision and control, caused S.S. to invest over two (2) million dollars into TCFG, XI, and CI.

29. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER and others under his employ, supervision and control, caused J.Z. to invest over one (1) million dollars into TCFG, XI, and CI.

30. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER and others under his employ, supervision and control, solicited others for investments in into TCFG, XI, and CI.

31. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER and others under his employ, supervision and control, including J. STOVER, concealed from investors R. STOVER's diversion of investor funds for the financial benefit and personal enrichment of himself and his family including J. STOVER.

32. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER filed a voluntary petition for personal bankruptcy on December 13, 2013 in the Eastern District of Texas, Sherman Division (In re: Ronald Eugene Stover, Case No. 14-32012-rld7). In his bankruptcy filing, which R. STOVER signed under penalty of perjury, R. STOVER failed to disclose assets and income while attempting to discharge over $9.5 million dollars in personal debt, including debt owed to investors S.S., J.Z., and others. On March 25, 2014, the bankruptcy court transferred venue of R. STOVER's personal bankruptcy case to the bankruptcy court for the District of Oregon.

33. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER appeared and answered questions under oath at a meeting of creditors on February 21, 2014 in Plano, Texas, in support of his voluntary petition for personal bankruptcy and debt discharge. The meeting was not concluded.

34. As part of the material scheme to defraud, R. STOVER appeared and answered questions under oath at a further meeting of creditors on July 15, 2014, in Portland, Oregon, in support of his voluntary petition for personal bankruptcy and debt discharge.

35. As part of the material scheme to defraud, J. STOVER appeared and answered questions under oath at an examination on August 7, 2014, in Portland, Oregon, in conjunction with and in support of R. STOVER's voluntary petition for personal bankruptcy and debt discharge.
